Chief Operating Officer,
Dow Jones

DOW JONES

Anna Sedgley is the chief operating officer of Dow Jones, a role she assumed in January 2017. She was previously chief financial officer and held the dual roles of COO and CFO until November 2017.

As chief operating officer, Sedgley leads the Dow Jones Operations Group and oversees the Print Products and Services unit, legal and risk management services as well as technology, facilities and security. Sedgley continues her oversight of the company's financial performance via the chief financial officer.

Sedgley joined Dow Jones in October 2009 as vice president, finance, after 10 years at BSkyB, now known as Sky, which is part of 21st Century Fox. At Sky, she provided financial support for a number of business functions including marketing, circulation, supply chain and technology.

Sedgley began her career as a trainee chartered accountant at PricewaterhouseCoopers in London. After qualification, she spent two years working in finance at Debenhams PLC, a leading U.K. department store.

She is a graduate of the University of Adelaide, Australia.
